West German authorities agreed to release the three yesterday and flew them to Zagreb aboard a chartered flight.

A. Tripoll radio broadcast, heard in Beirut, headlines its report; 'The safe arrival in Tripoli of the heroes of the Munich operation." The radio said the plane was carrying the three terrorists who were freed from West German jails as well as the three pirates and the passengers and crew.

It said the freeing of the three terrorists from West Germany produced a "great shock" to "Zionist authorities."

One report said that an organization calling itself the Central Organization of Young Arab Nationalists for the Liberation of Palestine had claimed responsibility for the hijacking.

Among the 13 passengers were one American, one British citizen. Spaniard and a German, Lufthansa said. The rest were Arabs. The Middle East News Agency said Tripoli Airport authorities had taken all necessary measures for the safe landing of the aircraft. It said the West Germany Ambassador in Tripoli was present for the landing. The terrorists came out of the plane with their faces covered with masks of gauze, the agency said. They boarded a car and drove away to an unknown destination. The passengers and crew were still on board the plane.

No newsmen or photographers were allowed to approach the plane. Strict security measures were in force, the agency said, adding the terrorists were in "good health and have high morale." It said at 11.30 the plane was being refuelled and there was a ossibility it might take off in a short while for West Germany.

In Cairo, diplomatic sources said the swift handing over of the three Arab killers by the West German Government was almost certain to improve sagging Arab-German relations.

The terrorists had earlier pledged to free the passengers of the hijacked plane when the freed Munich terrorists were handed over to them. West Germany freed the three Arabs and flew them from Munich to Zagreb where the hljack-

The High Court of Justice ruled yesterday that the Old City wall of Jerusalem was "not Rabbi Meir Kahane's private property" and rejected his application to be permitted to affix a mesuca to Damascus Gate.

Rabbi Kahane, leader of the Jewish Defence League, had applied for an order nisi calling on the Jerusalem police to show cause why his organization should not be permitted to put up a mezuza at Damascus Gate (Sha'ar Shechem). Rabbi Kahane argued that the owners of the gate (the Israel Government) had not voiced any objection to a meruza. Indeed, he said, merurot had been put up at other mesurer has been par up at other gates to the city. But the police commander, in denying his request, was acting "under political com-siderations not to permit actions that would perpetuate the Jewish character of the Old City," Kahane said.

The High Court held, however, that the applicant had not sub-mitted one shred of evidence that the "owners" of the wall had consented to the meruza. "It is, therefore, clear that the applicant's re-

COUNCIL OF HEADS OF INSTITUTIONS OF HIGHER LEARNING ANNOUNCES OPENING OF ACADEMIC YEAR

The academic year in all Israel's institutions of higher learning opened on Sunday, October 29. Studies at the Haifa Technion began earlier. Because of the increasing cost of higher education, and in accordance with the system of tuition fees in operation for many years, the institutions have made it clear to the students that a rise in tuition is unavoidable. In 1971-72 tuition for undergraduates was 11.935. This year it has been set at 11.1,080. At the same time the institutions have announced their intention to assure suitable help to students whose economic situation is such that they cannot afford the rise in tuition this year, and the increase last year (which amounted to 11.105). This decision is in accordance with the policy of the institutions which is that every able student shall have the opportunity to study at a university, regardless of his economic circumstances. Thus, the institutions announced that they were ready to discuss student aid arrangements with the National Union of Students. Talks were held between the Union and the Council, at which the Union of

Students agreed to a tuition of IL1,080.

The dispute, therefore, revolves around conditions of aid, not tuition fees. The Students' Union demanded that unmarried students earning up to 11.600 per month plus the cost of living increase since 1971-72, and married students earning up to ILS00 per month plus the cost of living increase, be entitled to a grant of the complete sum of the tuition rise in the past two years, namely IL 250. The Heads of the Institutions found this unacceptable from a social and public point of view. In the light of the realities of Israeli society, such criteria are unaccept-able, at a time when many people in the labour force must support large families with incomes no larger. The Technion reached an agreement with its Students' Union on the aid question.

The Heads of the Institutions examined this agreement, and after hearing the claims of the Union of Students that living expenses are higher in Jerusalem, the Tel Aviv area, and Beersheba, offered an arrangement with better terms than the Technion agreement.

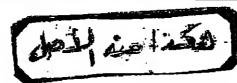

The proposal offered to the Union of Students was that every unmarried student whose income is less than IL5,000 per year (and in accordance with where he lives, whether at home, in a dormitory, or in rented rooms) can apply to his institution and receive a grant of IL200 or IL250. A married student whose spouse is also a student will receive a grant of fizzo or fizzo. A married student whose sporse is also a student will receive double that amount. Married students with children will receive the grant with a higher income threshold. Out of a desire and readiness to help those with higher incomes as well, and after weighing the demands of the Union of Students, it was proposed that every student not entitled to a grant under the above terms and claiming economic need in applying to his institution, may receive a loan of IL200 on very easy terms. The loan is unlinked, bears an interest of 5% unlinked, and is to be repaid gradually only after the student has completed his studies.

Through this combination of grants and loans as detailed above, it is assured that those in need will not suffer from the raise dictated by realistic necessity. The institutions are determined that no student possessing the requisite abilities who stands in economic need will be prevented from studying, this in view of the aid outlined above as well as the universities' existing scholarship systems.

The institutions of higher learning put these arrangements into effect with the opening of the academic year on Sunday, October 29, and any student in need of the aid outlined in the above proposal can apply to his institution and receive the required help.

Peru uncovers illegal drug organization

LIMA (AP). - Seven bands of drug manufacturers and dealers, credited with producing and selling terday the formation of a nine-county cocaine worth nearly $11m. over a period of several years, have been destroyed, Peruvian narcotics officials have revealed.

The cocaine, produced at hidden laboratories in Chile and Peru, was transported to foreign markets, mainly the United States, by a variety of means, police said. The drug was hidden in falsebottomed suitcases often carried by attractive women travellers of various nationalities and in the tubes of portable television sets.

One group of men masqueraded as cockfight fans to hide their drug smuggling activities. Four of the organizations worked on the national level in Peru, main-ly in the manufacture of cocaine, which is produced by processing the leaves of the South American coca plant. Three other groups, with international connections, handled the sale of cocaine and its transportation abroad, officers said.

Discovery and destruction of the organizations was carried out over a period of five months, during which drugs worth more than $1.7m.

were confiscated, police said. A total of 55 persons were ar-rested in connection with the investigation. They now are awaiting trial, police said.

Gunmen terrorize bus in Brazil

SAO PAULO, Brazil (AP). - Two gunmen hijacked a bus here on Friday, shot two people dead and apparently raped a girl passenger, police sources reported on Saturday. The two men got onto the bus in a residential area and forced the driver at gunpoint to drive the bus into an unlit street,

There they made all passengers undress and demanded the collected fare. The bus conductor and a passenger were shot dead by the hijackers when they tried to resist. According to one eyewitness, the bijackers made the driver and a 17-year-old girl leave the bus with them. When they came back they told the passengers they had raped . Chos, too, has said more than the girl. They also burned the passenger's clothes.

THE BLOC FOR UNITY AND CHANGE A call to members of the party

This call is directed to YOU, a member of the National Religious Party who has come on aliga recently.

You have come to this country because you believe in the ideals of religious Zionism, because you have been brought up on the ideas of "Torah Va'Avodah." You have come because you wish to live a full Jewish life in the State of Israel.

Perhaps the reception you received at the hands of your colleagues in this country did not come up to your expectations. Perhaps you found the Majdal family neglected, lacking cohesion. You have probably heard about dissension and indifference in the party ranks and so have decided to withdraw and stand 3100f.

It is now within your power to change this state of affairs.

We are facing elections in the National Religious Party, and we pin our hopes on the outcome of these elections. We therefore appeal to you to join our ranks.

The contribution made by the National Religious Party to the Jewish people and to the State are fully known to you. Our members were to be found in the thick of all battles and on all fronts.

You are benefiting from religious facilities that were secured only after hard struggie. Your children are being educated in religious schools modelled on lines of which you approve. How different was the lot of new olim who arrived 20-25 years ago! It is due to the efforts and the struggles of the National Religious Party that you benefit from this improved situation.

You are well aware that the National Religious Party spans the generation gap; we do not discard the past, and are mindful of the future. We act as a link between Israel and the Diaspora, and unite all sections of the Jewish people.

Do not allow disappointment and unconcern to get the upper hand.

We call on you to join the camp that stands for Unity and Change.

Our Bloc contains people from all countries and backgrounds, men and women of all ages.

Our Bloc is headed by Dr. Yitzchak Rafael, M.K. In the early years of the State, he directed aliya activities, and the problems of new olim are close to his heart. He is a man of verve and vision. It is within his power, and that of all our colleagues in the Bloc, to bring about the hoped for Unity and Change in the movement.

You are anxious to bring about a change in the National Religious Party, and will therefore not waste your vote on those who make great promises they are unable to keep.

Cast your vote for people of ability and experience, who will provide a strong leadership for the National Religious Party.

Many of your friends, themselves new olim, have found a place in our ranks. Place your confidence in us.

electorate goes to the polls today to elect a new federal government. In June, 1968, Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau's Liberal Party won 155 of the 264 seats in the House of Commons. But by-election losses, defections, resignations and deaths have sliced that margin to 15 seats, and Trudeau could be in jeopardy of losing his majority position today.

None of the other three federal parties seems to have more than a remote chance of replacing the Liberals as the government this time.

PRIME MINISTER TRUDEAU

30th anniversary of El Alamein battle observed

EL ALAMEIN (Reuter). - Diplomats from about two dozen nations yesterday attended special ser-vices at El Alamein marking the 30th anniversary of the World War II battle.

The ambassadors and military attaches visited the Allied, German and Italian Cemeteries where the thousands of troops killed in the battle are remembered in services each year.

Many Egyptians had hoped that Field Marshal Lord Montgomery, the British Commander of the Allied Desert Army at the time, would be able to attend the ceremonies, but his doctors had apparently advised against the trip.

More than 1,000 Italian veterans and their families had already visi-ted the battlefield along with a group of 50 members of Field Marshal Erwin Rommel's Afrika Korps routed by Montgomery's Army.

Pair who tried to kill Makarios escape prison

NICOSIA (Reuter). - Two men in 1970 have escaped, it was reported here yesterday.

The newspaper 'Makhi" said they were found to be missing from cells in Nicosia Prison during a routine check Saturday night. Because no damage had been done to doors or barred windows, there was a possibility the escape was carried out with inside help, it added

The fugitives are Adamos Harltonis, 27, a student, and Antonis Yenagritis, 30, a former policeman. They were jailed for 14 years with two other men in November, 1970, for attempting to kill Presi-dent Makarios and his helicopter pilot the previous March. The helicopter was shot at as it took off from the grounds of the Archbi-shop's palace. The pilot was badly TAIPEI (AP). - The American inwounded but managed to land safely. чеуз, is a distinct possibility that the Liberais will lose their majority edge. As he was in 1968, Trudeau, now 53, is the main issue. Despite his switch from casual clothes to business suits and from swinging bachelorhood to marriage and fatherhood, the Prime Minister remains an intriguing, and sometimes exciting, personality. His intellectual capacity, his aba-ity to communicate, his apparent candidness and even his penchant for swearing in public generally appeal to young people, which is of major significance in light of the drop in the minimum voting age to 18 from 31 during the last parliament, raising the size of the elec-torate by more than 20 per cent. Trudeau also appeals to many older voters on the basis of toughness, and he will probably pick up votes in response to the crack-down he imposed during the October 1970 terrorist incidents in Quebec, during which Quebec Labour Minister Pierre Laporte was slain. There is no doubt, however, that sizeable percentage of the electorate resents Trudeau - some because they suspect him of forcing a French-Canadian power play in Ottawa and some because of what opposition party spokesmen have termed his "arrogance" and "inhumanity." His government's international record has shown initiative and in-cludes the diplomatic recognition of China, the fostering of close relations with the Soviet Union and the cutting back of Nato involvement

Domestically, the Liberals have serving 14 years in jail for trying promoted bilingual facilities throughto assassinate President Makarios out the federal service, introduced a measure of reform to the country's income tax laws, and raised old-age pensions.

On the debit side, unemployment has risen to the highest level in more than 11 years - 7.1 per cent of the labour force, and the increase in the cost of living over the last 12 months - 5.3 per cent was the highest in more than 20 years.

N.R.P. POLLS TOMORROW AFTER BITTER CAMPAIGN

THE National Religious Party goes to the polls tomorrow, four years since its last internal election. There are about 100,000 registered members with the right to vote, making it the second largest political movement (after the Labour Party) in Israel

Obviously what happens inside the N.R.P. is of interest to the general public because as the political wing of organized religious Zionism it is the second largest coalition party and the third largest Knesset faction.

These will be the first party elections to be held since the death of Haim Mosne Shapiro, whose passing has plunged the party into a continuous turmoil as the various contestants have jockeyed to fill his place. The former Interior Minister commanded the allegiance of all wings of the movement.

There are built-in contradictions in the party, devoted to the rule of religion but also concerned with the division of the party spoils system. Some cynics charge the N.R.P. functionaries with treating the Almighty as if He were the chairman of the board of directors of the United Mizrachi Bank Ltd. The late Prof. Baruch Kurzwell, a very observant Orthodox Jew, once wrote of the party powers: "They seem to think that the Almighty is the Shapiro of the cosmos."

Assets the party does have -the end result of a canny utilization of its importance to Mapai and stretch from struction company, to its big bank, the Moriah Travel Agency and a wide range of business activities, not to speak of its settlement movements. There are also a network of educational institutions Interior Minister Yosef Burg, Religious Affairs Minister Zerah topped by Bar-flan University.

The present election campaign has been marked by charges and counter-charges of abuses and

They claim that he did not "deliver" the deputy ministership they claimed he promised them.

In the intervening years the two Youth circles leaders, Zevulun Hammer and Dr. Yehuda Ben-Meir, have worked hard at building up a reputation as "enfants terribles" Mr. Hammer's supporters and believe that at least he should be in the Cabinet. The old Labour wing, Lamifneh, has been revived, at least in name, by Dr. Burg and Mr. Hazani. They enjoy support in the religious kibbutz movement, among the Hapoel Hamizrachi trade union and among party functionaries. This list has three M.K.'s: Mr. Hazani (the only N.R.P. Minister still retaining his Knesset membership), Avraham Melamed and Simha Friedman, the latter one of the Kibbutz Hedati's more prominent leaders.

The Youth circles have maximalist platform. They have joined forces with the younger leadership circle led by Moshe Ishon and Pinhas Feder. This list's No. 3 man is Aharon Cohen, of the World Centre of the Mizrachi Movement.

But, to our relief, the most ap plause was given by the youthful audience for a soft number - a charming flute solo accompanied by bass and soft percussion, mostly a triangle. The positive qualities of this group may come out more ad-vantageously if the musicians would consider presenting their perfor-mance with less electronic noise and introducing more variety into their rather limited stock phrases. Dan Gottfried — using a 'normal' grand piano, with Albert Plamenta on soprano and alto saxophone, plus electric guitar and percussion provided much more stimulus for the listener.

By JOAN B. CASS JEANNETTE Ordman's foot in-jury, which caused a cancellation of "Metallics," proved to be a lucky break for the company and for the Tel Aviv audience which saw their recent performance.

Three dances proved to be exactly anough — Bat-Dor concerts often go on too long. Further, the dele-tion cut into the usual stifling domination by Miss Ordman, thereby allowing other stars to shine more brightly. Nira Paaz illuminated the Bat-

Dor firmament last spring and now her inner glow fired "Myth" and lent a tantalizing sophistication to "Dance Pictures". Miriam Zamir, who returns to the company after a year's absence, showed tender lyrical grace and linear clarity in "Myth" and "Little Heil." Ora Oror glowed like hot coal in a convincing, devilish encounter with four boys in "Little Hell."

If it is a critic's pleasure to spot new luminosity in female dancers, it is even more gratifying to find it among the males. (No offence to my sisters in liberation-good male ancers are simply very rare.) David Rappaport emerged from the anon-ymity of the ensemble to engrave the central figure in "Myth" with a sharply modelled strength. Best of all was Lonia Brauda, who immigrated from Riga only a few months ago. He showed evidence of the famed Russian excellence in classical ballet training, and al-though new to modern dance (regarded in the Soviet Union as unacceptable bourgeois decadence), he appeared to have no trouble with the freer more dynamic styles in "Myth" and "Dance Pictures", Remember the name - Lonia-Braude - because I predict that he will be-come one of Bat-Dor's and Israel's outstanding dancers.

All the works presented were new to the repertory. Walter Gore's "Dance Pictures," a formally wellconstructed allegory of the world as a dance stage, was enjoyable with movement rebounding from place to place. Of Paul Sanosardo's two works I found "Little Hell" less in-teresting. The movement tends to be bland or merely imitative. "Myth" on the other hand builds successfully on contrasting movement tex-

Speed used judiciously in the right place and with skill is a danger to nobody; but speed used care-lessly and selfishly is fraught with danger, and even death.

Sneed also induces a measure of optical illusion. While driving at speed it is easy to mistake the dis-tance of an object, which appears further away than it actually is.

Another aspect of road safety touches what is called kinetic energy. which means the moving force possessed by a vehicle in motion. Another way to put it is to refer to kinetic energy as the kick possessed by a moving vehicle. Travel by coach in pre-World War I Palestine was torture because of the number of holes in the road surfaces, the terrible dust the summer and the kneein deep mud in the winter. The horses were emaciated and in-capable of pulling their load (one of the coachmen jokingly called them his Udler (eagles); there were no facilities for having a meal or for lodging overnight on the way. During the Great War, when the Turks removed the rails between Jaffa and Jerusalem and all traffic between the two towns was re-stricted to the roads, the journey lasted ten to fourteen hours and sometimes more. Even short stretches of road on which there was a lot of traffic — for in-stance, Jaffa-Petah Tikva were in terrible condition; as a rule, in summer, passengers walked the stretches that led "Occasionally, the 'coach' was a hansom cab with two horses that could take three people "(two on back seat and one on small wooden bench that could be set up), but more often it was a diligence pulled by three horses and had three cross-benches with wooden back rests, leaving room for eight people besides the coachman (usually, however, far more people travelled on it). One day, on the road from Jaffa to Petah Tikva, the German agronomist Hubert Auhagen and I met a diligence containing the correct number of travellers, that is, eight people; he stood rooted with surprise zn1 said: 'Here comes an empty diligence with only eight passengers!' The jour-ney by coach from Jaffa to Haifa took one-and-a-half days. In 1912 or 1913, Shmaryahu Levin made the journey from Jaffa to Haifa (changing horses at Zikhron Ya'akov) in one day (without staying overnight at Zikhron Ya'acov); this was considered great progress. The worst journeys were those in the southern part of Palestine (in the vicinity of hard work to drag them out. "The first motor-car (imported from the United States) appeared in Palestine in 1912; it belonged to Aaron Aaronson. It aroused a great deal of interest, but after short while it broke down and disappeared from the roads. Shortly before the Great War. a German called Wagner produced car in his engineering works in Jaffa by fitting an engine into a sort of hansom cab. This car could be rented from him for special journeys. I used it shortly before war broke out for an urgent journey from Jaffa to Haifa. I paid 105 francs (more than £4) for it and made the journey in five hours, which at that time appeared to be an amazing feat. Cars became the regular means of transportation Palestine only after the Great War. "The best connection between

Runaway prices threaten Mart's economy THE INFLATION CANCER

By RICHARD C. LONGWORTH

BRUSSELS (UPI). - The Dutch, who make butter, are eating margarine. In London, the cost of buying a home has been rising by three pounds sterling ($7) per day. German smokers are rolling their own cigarettes and the Italians are learning to like hamburger. Inflation has hit Europe good and hard Both governments and households are feeling the pinch In the nine nations of the enlarged Common Market, prices are going up at an sverage annual rate of six per cent. In some countries like Britain, the rate is closer to to per cent.

Common Market Vice-President Raymond garre warned of a seven per cent average rate in 1973 unless something is done. Today the nine finance ministers meet in Luxembourg to ry to do something — namely, a joint cam-psign against inflation. But chances for success are alim.

"Inflation is the cancer of the modern economy," intoned British Chancellor of the Exchequer Anthony Barber. "In some countries ft has led to the death of democratic govern

Seven per cent inflation forced early elections in the Netherlands, where the voting at the end of November will be largely over what to do about wages and prices. In Bri-tain, Prime Minister Edward Heath held marathon talks with industry and union leaders to seek voluntary measures to check inflation. Failure, Mr. Heath warned, would mean a government-imposed wage-price freeze,

Bonn election issue

In the West German general election on November 19 the overwhelming issue is the 62 per cent inflation rate. The vote will be watched abroad for its impact on European but Germans themselves are more detente, 12.5 worried about memories of the runaway prewar inflation that wiped out life savings and led to Hitler's rise.

Meat-loving Germans are eating boiled or tried eggs for dinner twice a week or are men eggs for inner twice a week or are turning to chicken to escape the high price of beef — up 16 per cent from $3.8 to $4.4 per kilo in less than a year. Cigarettes in Germany rose recently by about 10 U.S. cents per pack and many Germans have returned to the wartime custom of rolling their own. "FRISTER

In Italy, a meat shortage has sent beef prices soaring by some 20 per cent over the last year and has introduced housewives, who formerly bought only the best beef, to the dubious joys of lowlier cuts.

In Britain, inflation exacerbated the debate over Common Market entry. Housing costs, especially, have orbited - doubling across the nation in the past 10 years and, in London, nearly tripling. The housing boom touched off a wave of speculation and added a new word to the English language — "gazumping," or the custom of promising a property at a certain price to a buyer, then forcing him to raise his bid day by day under pressure from other prospective buyers.

Germany, food costs are up 16.4 per In cent, clothing prices rose 18.4 per cent, shoes cost nearly one-third more and those two German staples — beer and potatoes — are per cent dearer than they were in January. In Britain, tea is cheaper but kippers are up. Sliced fresh bread in France runs 40 U.S. cents per half loaf today, up from 30 U.S. cents six months ago, and roast beef in a Paris market costs $4 per kilo.

In Holland, the Government, employers and workers agreed to keep wage increases to 11 per cent next year and price rises to 5.9 per cent. But Mrs. Ank Van Der Perk, a truck driver's wife, warned that living standards were going down. "Car costs are going up so much we may return to our bicycles." she said. "And we have stopped eating butter. We Dutch produce butter but are forced to eat margarine." "After paying for rent, food and transportation, I hardly have enough to save, much less to spend on clothes," mourned London secretary Ann Hunter, And Frankfurt housewife Elfriede Kemmler, 32, spoke for millions of Europeans when she snapped: "The Government has to do something - and pretty quick."

The Governments are beginning to agree. Europe's post-war boom has evolved into an inflationary spiral just when the U.S. has got its inflation down to three per cent - nearly perfect stability by today's standards.

All this, combined with the devaluation of the dollar, means that Europe is fast losing the competitive advantage, through lower wages and costs, that it once held.

As the francs, pounds and marks of Europe lose their value, the Common Market's campaign to force a united economy by 1980 built around a single currency is also endangered.

French worries

France, which often opposes united action within the Common Market, was so shaken by the inflation that it called for a special ministerial meeting to do something about it. This was the genesis of today's conference in Luxenobourg.

Germany responded with a proposal that the Governments agree to increase their supply of new money by only 10 per cent per year, This is half the present rate. Since too much money is a classic cause of inflation, the German idea might help. The Common Market's Executive Commission added its own ideas — an across-the-board 15 per cent cut in the Market's external tariff, a suspension in beef duties and tough action against monopolies and cartels.

But hopes are not high. Britain is expected to oppose any lifting of beef duties. Cartels in Europe have survived past attempts to end price-fixing. And since the average ex-ternal tariff is only 6.9 per cent anyway, a 15 per cent cut in that would lower the actual tariff by about one per cent — hardly enough to bring cheap imports flowing into Europe.

mans especially are wary of such Government controls. But one Common Market suggestion has begun to have an impact. The Commission advised Governments to hold increases in public spending to between nine and 10.4 per cent per year, and the 1973 Belgian Government budget, just announced, is exactly 10.4 per cent bigger than the one in 1972.

An earlier hint by Market officials that they might seek a freeze on farm prices ap-pears to have been shot down quickly by angry protests of the politically powerful Committee of Professional Agricultural Organizations that "agriculture is not a major factor in inflation."

MURDERERS ESCAPE

THE three surviving killers of Israel's athletes in Munich are now once more at liberty, free to kill again, and proof that those who assassinate Israelis abroad may hope to escape punishment even if they are caught in the act.

The German government yielded promptly to the demands for the killers' release by the terrorists who hijacked a Luft-hanse plane on its way to Ankara — almost as though they had been waiting for this to have and to relian them of to happen and to relieve them of the need to put their prisoners on trial on triat. No doubt Bonn will argue that it is mainly because the 11 Israelis were murdered when they were held hostages in Munich that Bonn would not endanger the passengers and crew of the hijacked plane yesterday, and preferred to agree to the terrorists' demand. But Israelis are the target of the terrorists. The terrorists would not lightly have decided to let these passengers, including eight Arabs, die on the plane, together with themselves and possibly the three rescued murderers as well, as the Yugoslavs seem to have feared when they agreed to allow the plane to be refuelled. Lufthansa has now paid black-mail for the second time, apparently taking some independ-ent action to this end, and have revealed themselves as an easy target. They are wrong if they believe that now, with the prisoners gone, they will be im-mune to further attacks. To yield to blackmail is to invite further extortion.

THIS year about 20 per cent of the students at the Hebrew University will be drawn from the Oriental communities, compared with only 12 per cent last year, and negligible numbers only 2 few years ago. The majority of them have gone through the Centre for Pre-Academic Studies established to help them catch up on what they may have missed in their school-ing and qualify them for University or Technion admission.

The Convocation of the University held today to mark the new academic year of the Centre is thus evidence of a vital part of the University's work, and will be only partially dimmed by the strike of the students at the University itself. Ten years have passed since the first experiments were made at the Hebrew University and the Technion to give a fair chance of a higher education to disadvan-taged students with inadequate schooling.

Since then efforts have been made to narrow the educational

BUS FARES: THE CASE AGAINST A PRICE RISE

Of all the monopolies thriving in this country, that of the bus co-operatives is the most entrenched and the least justified, says Economic Editor MOSHE ATER. He argues that a thorough reappraisal is now long overdue.

CAR ownership has been spread-ingrapidly in this country. How-ever, 85 per cent of all families do not own a car. Even family members of car owners must often resort to a bus. In an average household bus fares may account for, say, 10 per cent of the total expenditure, almost as much as clothing, twice as much as health or education. Therefore a rise in bus fares hits most people incomparably harder than a hike in the price of such essen-tials as bread or milk.

Must bus fares go up? This seems to be the decision of the competent authorities, based on rising operating costs. The only point still being debated is the extent to which this bike should be borne by the taxpayer in the form of increased subsidies to the bus cooperatives. As a matter of fact, the price index of "inputs in buses" - popularly called the "bus transport basket" - advanced 31 per cent between the se-cond quarter of 1971 and that of 1972. This figure makes the cooperatives' requests look rather modest, yet the public will find them hard to digest.

BISE IN COSTS

With due respect to statistics, such a large rise in bus operating cost is astonishing. Over that same period, building costs — allegedly most influenced by inflation — advanced half as much (16 per cent). The price index of agricultural inputs advanced 17 per cent. The cost of living advanced only 12 per cent, while wholesale prices of manu-factured products edged up half as much

Is there perhaps something wrong with the way the bus costs are computed? Is there perhaps a bias towards an excessive rise built into the basic "basket"?

agreed upon by the government experts. Moreover, the government is contractually committed to abide by it. But it is remark-rising at the most rapid vote even before 1971. Is this rooted in technical factors, or does it lie with the efficiency of bus operation or with the earnings of the bus cooperatives? Not even the Histadrut's fullest support can gloss over the fact that bus cooperatives in this country enjoy a monopoly. Moreover, it is doubtful whether the control exercised by the government over quality, price and profits of the cooperatives' service is half as effective as that applied to several mo-nopolistic industrial companies.

Since the "basket" figures are suspect, other statistics concerning bus transport may help flluminate the situation.

EFFICIENCY

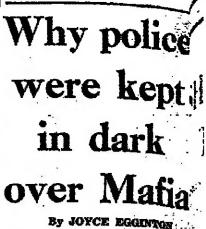

Compared with the 1968 average, industrial proceeds at mid-1972 were up 110 per cent, while the labour input (man-days worked) in industry was up 30 per cent. Of the 60 per cent increase in money output per man-day worked, about one-half (33 per cent) was a reflection of higher (wholesale) prices, while the other half represented a real advance in productivity, that is a larger output of manufactured products per man-day worked. Over this same period, proceeds of bus services increased 90 per cent and their labour input 20 per cent, which also results in a 60 per cent rise per man-day worked. But interurban bus fares rose almost 40 per cent, and urban fares more than that in the above period, and the cooper-atives insist on another sub-Admittedly, the "basket" was stantial hike. On top of this bus fares are heavily subsidized. Obviously, productivity -- that is, efficiency - of ous services did the bus index WAS not improve at all

It may be claimed that conveyance of people cannot be re-volutionized like industrial production by installation of modern equipment, However, there is no denying that some progress could have been achieved in the ef-ficiency or the quality of our bus services. Yet the average age of buses operated by the cooperatives has not changed since 1960. Neither has there been a significant increase in the number of seats per bus, or in convenience to the public.

Spokesmen of the cooperatives often claim that buses cannot be used efficiently owing to in-creasing traffic density in our cities, but statistics show that bus velocity in Tel Aviv and in suburban lines increased slightly in recent years. On the other hand, the number of people hurt in bus road accidents has been rising more than either the number of buses plying the roads or the kilometrage they cover.

Ail of the labour added to the bus services since 1968 was that of hired workers. While the number of man-days provided by employees increased 33 per cent, work by the cooperative members dropped 3 per cent. By now, work in the bus services is about equally divided between members and employees, but the trend indicates that the bus ser-

STUDENT STRIKE

To the Editor of The Jerusalem Post Sir, - You mention in your edi-torial of October 26 that "tuition fees make up about nine per cent of the budget of the universities, which state they cannot absorb even part of the increases except at the cost of *reducing academic stan-*dards." Academic standards are not determined only by the quality of the teaching, but also, to a very important degree, by the quality of the students. Can you raise this standard by increasing the fees? I do not see how the academic standards are to improve when students have to devote the time they should spend studying to earning money to maintain themselves at the uniersity. While I disagree with your con-clusion that "there is a little justification for changing the present direction of policy..." I share your difficulty in understanding the strike even though for a different reason. Students who boycott lectures just lose the tuition for which they are going to pay in any case. It would seem more rational to attend the lectures but unanimously refuse to pay the increase.

OUTRAGEOUS EXPENSE

To the Editor of The Jerusalem Post Sir. - Were it not for the complete apathy of the Israeli public, your article 'Each M.K. to cost IL150,000'' (October 22) would bring an outcry from 3 million Israelis. At a time when the Government tries to teach us austerity, an attempt to burden the taxpayer with additional, unheard of expenses must make the political parties enemies No. 1 of every taxpayer, worker or professional. And to crown this attempt, "Labour, Gahal airing bid to increase Knesset"! Of course, it seams necessary to have people to fill the empty Knesset seats we can see occasionally.
